Who Wrote It?

Bon. J. Proctor Knott of Kentucky rendered himself famous by a speech delivered in congress 28 years ago. It was given during the debate on extending the time of a railway grant for constructing a road from the St. Croix river to Duluth. Mr. Knott was opposed to the extension and argued the case in a speech full of purposely exaggerated diction and of broad humor and satire. It made a great sensation and is on record as one of the most ludicrous speeches ever delivered in that not over lively spot, the hall of representatives. It is rather odd, though, that the phrase in which Duluth was characterized as "the zenith city of the unsalted seas" does not occur in the printed copies of the speech. After all, was it not in the speech and is it a separate coinage of that versatile genius, Colonel Pat Donan?

Of the humorous allusions in Mr. Knott's address, perhaps the best is that in which he represents the Pagan Indians as plowing up wheat ground with buffalo bulls, then fattening the buffalo on the wheat and driving them to market to Duluth. Mr. Knott had a map near him which pictured the future of Duluth, its "as a center, with concentric circles widening out from it" and "taking in all the universe," as the speaker said. From time to time he pointed to this map during his address. Shouts and laughter echoed through the hall and galleries.

It has been charged that Proctor Knott did not write the speech himself, but that it was prepared for him by Colonel Pat Donan. The Washington Post has a paragraph to that effect. The Post writer says:

Representative Goldwater's offhand speech on the removal of the Indian warehouse from New York to Chicago has frequently brought up the subject of Knott's famous Indian speech in Congress.

"Speaking of Proctor Knott's Indian speech," said an old inhabitant of the house of commons, "it was a carefully prepared effort to impress the country, and it was wholly extraneous to the subject."

"The speech was not prepared to make any impression, but it was meant to make the delivery a notable episode in stereotyping them. Please make special note of this."

Woman's Alleged Intuition.

We find The Phenological Journal still bravely whacking away at the ancient tradition "that man learns things by reasoning power, women by intuition." "Women grasp truth by intuition," quoth The P. J. "Like the flashlight photo, they get it and do not exactly know how or why, only they feel that it is true."

It appears to us that we have heard something like this before. It hath an ancient and dishonorable smell. What everybody says ought to be true, yet is it? The fact is that we have yet to encounter the very first instance of well defined feminine intuition, and we have been looking for it a long time. So far as our observation goes, a woman can be fooled far more easily than a man. The man uses his eyes, his ears and his wits and learns by what he suffers. The woman trusts her fine feminine intuitions and gets swindled from the word go. Smooth tongued adventurers cheat her out of her property, and she trusts her male relatives, and they swindle her in the same way. She is the prey of fortune tellers and spirit mongers; she is gulled by everybody, her own children most of all.

Where, then, is that fine intuition that guides her unerringly? In brief, it is booh. It won't do ladies. Keep your eyes open; get your eyeteeth cut; reason out a lesson from every unfortunate or fortunate experience, and you will be the better off for it. The Almighty meant man to use his reasoning power when he gave it to him. The human reason and the human will are the two most godlike gifts bestowed on mortals.

That professorship of journalism has started up again—this time in the University of Pennsylvania. It is said to be in charge of a practical newspaper man, who, if he is really a practical newspaper man, must smile to hear himself called "Professor." Joseph F. Johnson. A school of journalism that is worth anything, if there could be such a thing, would train its pupils to have a working knowledge of as many modern languages as possible. Next it would give them a thorough knowledge of civil government in all the countries. Next it would make them take a living interest in all the great social and economic questions. Then it would bid them read a good newspaper all through every day and remember the contents and never to use in writing two words where one would do. Then it would dismiss them with its blessing and a parting injunction to "boil it down."

Mexico is evidently dreaming of being a commercial power on the sea. The last Mexican congress, just before adjournment, passed a number of measures looking to the establishment and fostering of a merchant marine. By the new laws either native or foreign built vessels may register under the Mexican flag. Foreigners may buy Mexican vessels just as citizens may, and bounds are to be put for shipbuilding. It will be interesting to watch the effect of these encouraging laws in the next few years.

A writer in the New York Evening Post suggests that anarchists are lunatics and should be dealt with as such. When well developed anarchist symptoms are manifested in an individual, he should be shut up in an asylum, its other insane people are. This would have a tendency to make these genty scarce.

A Grand Feature

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is that while it purifies the blood and sends it coursing through the veins full of richness and health, it also imparts new life and vigor to every function of the body. Hence the expression so often heard: "Hood's Sarsaparilla makes a new man of me." It overcomes that tired feeling so common to us. We learn from The Engineering and Mining Journal that the proposed ship canal across the Maryland-Delaware peninsula. He finds that such a canal would shorten the distance to Baltimore around up Chesapeake bay by 35 hours. The idea is for European ships to cut directly across the famous "east shore" instead of sailing down to the mouth of the Chesapeake, entering between Caps Charles and Henry and then steaming up the bay to Baltimore. Baltimore's foreign commerce is increasing rapidly, and she wants to get her oysters across to Europe as quickly as ships from other ports can take their freight.

We learn from The Engineering and Mining Journal that no less than seven routes have already been surveyed across the peninsula. The most available appears to be that either by way of the Choptank river or Susquehanna river. The cost of the canal as estimated will be the different routes from $3,500,000 up to $1,500,000. The length of the canal will be from 100 to 140 miles, according to the route chosen. The engineering problems to be solved are not difficult. The Baltimore city council is profoundly interested in this proposition to bring Baltimore 140 miles nearer to the Atlantic ocean. It has authorized a commission to endeavor to secure the co-operation of congress in the plan.

That

Tired Feeling

So common at this season, is a serious condition, liable to lead to disastrous results. It is a sure sign of declining health, and that the blood is impeded and impure. The best and most successful remedy is found in

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

Which makes rich, healthy blood, and thus gives strength to the nerves, elasticity to the muscles, vigor to the brain, and health to the whole body. In truth, Hood's Sarsaparilla

Lima Loses the Sunday Game at Gygnet Yesterday
Defeated by a Score of Thirteen to Fifteen—Unjust Decisions

Yesterday at Gygnet the Lima boys were defeated by a score of 13 to 14. The Gygnet club now is not the same team that played here some time ago, but is a new team and has defeated Findlay twice. Lima's boys had the game all won in the first two innings when two costly errors and an unjust decision by the umpire (who, by the way, was one of the extra Gygnet players and in uniform) lost the game.

Lima went to bat last and succeeded in getting one run, and then shutting the Gygnet out. In the next inning our boys made eight runs, and things went on for two innings, when the errors of the out fielders and poor decisions of the umpire caused the Gygnet to succeed in tying the score. Then it was up and down until the last inning when Gygnet got two runs ahead and the Lima failed to score. However, had the umpire given just decisions our boys would have had a fine chance to win.

The batter for Gygnet was Cornelius and Murry. Cornelius was knocked out of the box in the sixth inning, and Hobbes substituted. He did good work. O'Brien caught for Lima. While at Toledo enroute to Minneapolis he took jack pitcher Sodders and took him along. He pitched a fine game at coach, but was out of sight. His back somersaults and yelling kept the crowd in a roar of laughter. An effort will probably be made to have Minneapolis loan him to Lima.

TONIGHT—Dayton here Wednesday and Thursday.

Findlay will play here soon and if Lima can get Sodders our boys will have a good chance to win.

Fairfax will pitch one of the games against Dayton next week. Dayton has a fine team and to beat them our boys will have to play ball.

With Thompson, Sodders and Fairfax for pitchers and O'Brien and Donavan as catchers and the out field strengthened Lima will have a team that will baffle any of them.

They got the animal to trotting at a good pace, when the boy with the lines ran around a tree. The lines were snapped by the sudden strain, and the horse becoming frightened, ran away.

ABOUT PASSENGERS.

Rival Hack Drivers Indulge in a Fight at the C. H. & D. Depot.

At 12:30 o'clock today when the C. H. & D. passenger train pulled in from the north and the hackmen were clamoring for passengers, Fred Hancock, who recently commenced driving for J. C. Messer, got a woman and little girl into his hack. They wanted to be transferred to another driver. They had transferred twice, good only on Yesum, & Irwin. Irwin & Son approached the rig and told the passengers that Hancock could not transfer them, whereupon the lady got out of the hack and asked the driver to lift the little girl out, which he did. Irwin and Hancock had some words and finally the former struck Hancock a blow across the eye. The two were separated before any further trouble ensued, and Hancock went to the police station where he filed a charge of assault and battery against Irwin.

BRIDGE COLLAPSED

Carrying a Traction Engine and Two Men With it.

John Sawmiller Crushed Beneath the Wheels and George Jones Badly Hurt.

Saturday afternoon Sawmiller's traction engine, to which was attached a separator and water tank, crushed through the Honey Run bridge near the residence of James Baxter, in Amanda township, and landed in a pile of debris at the bottom of the creek.

John Sawmiller, the engineer, who lives three miles west of Lima on the Allentown road, and George Jones, of Allentown, went down with the wreck and in so doing each sustained very bad injuries.

Sawmiller, who was crushed in the wreckage, was held down by one of the engine wheels which rested heavily upon both his legs, mashing them from the knees downward. He was held in this condition for some time and suffered awful agony before assistance arrived and extracted him by means of levers.

Jones had two ribs broken besides somewhat internally injured. Drs. Hitchcock and Drescher, of Elida, were summoned and administered to the wants of the injured.

Sawmiller's injuries are considered the most serious, but it is not thought his legs will have to be amputated.
